

Victor Snover – ECHO, Inc. Board Member

I was born and raised in rural upstate NY where I volunteered to serve in our nation's military upon graduating high school in 1988. I subsequently served 22 years, including four separate deployments during Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm in 1991 and drug interdiction operations. After recruiting for the military for many years, I retired from military service in April 2012 and shortly thereafter began my second career teaching Army JROTC in our public schools. I currently teach JROTC at Aztec High School and have taught there since August 2015.

One of my core beliefs is one should try to live a life of service. I continue to serve Aztec as a public high school teacher while serving as an elected Aztec City Commissioner/ Mayor of Aztec and balancing my teaching career, elected position, and of course finding time to play in our outdoor recreation lovers paradise here in the Four Corners!

Currently, I serve on the ECHO of New Mexico's Board of Directors, the Aztec Airport Advisory Board, Western Leaders Network, and the New Mexico Workforce Solutions State Board.

Whenever possible, I explore our beautiful natural attractions of northern New Mexico and the Great American Southwest! Camping, hiking, eating good food, exploring this expansive high desert backyard and mountains are just a few of the things that inspire me to enjoy our home, but also make me ever determined to serve my greater community in hopes of making it a better place to live, work, play and protect.
